

HD-DTA100U

DIGITAL TERMINAL ADAPTER

Product Overview

Since the digital broadcast revolution, cable MSOs have distributed Digital Terminal Adapters (DTAs) to their basic cable customers. DTAs are a low-cost option allowing cable operators to provide basic cable to their customers without incurring the cost of advanced service set-tops. With the growing demand for HD content, MSOs want to use HD DTAs to deliver HD content to their customers while reducing their overall costs.

Motorola's High-Definition Digital Transport Adapter (HD-DTA100u) is a low-cost, customer premise device that allows broadcast digital signals to be decoded from MPEG-2/ MPEG-4 transport, then converted to an analog or HDMI signal intended for display on SD- and HD-capable devices. Cable channels can be displayed in HD without the additional cost of an advanced STB.
